Revelations of Divine Love, written by Julian of Norwich in the 14th century, is a profound and moving account of a series of visions and revelations that she experienced. This classic work of Christian mysticism offers insights into the nature of God, the human soul, and the path to salvation.

The Life of Julian of Norwich

Julian of Norwich was born in Norwich, England, around 1342. Little is known about her early life, but it is believed that she was a Benedictine anchoress, living in a small cell attached to a church. She spent her days in prayer and contemplation, and it was during this time that she experienced the visions and revelations that would later form the basis of Revelations of Divine Love.

In 1373, Julian was seriously ill and received the last rites of the Church. However, she miraculously recovered, and it was after this experience that she began to write down her visions. Revelations of Divine Love was completed in 1393, and it quickly became a popular work of devotion among both religious and lay people.

The Visions and Revelations

The visions and revelations that Julian of Norwich experienced are remarkable for their depth and beauty. In her visions, she saw God as a loving and compassionate Father, and she learned that all people are created in God's image and likeness. She also saw that the human soul is immortal, and that even in the midst of suffering, there is always hope for salvation.

One of the most famous of Julian's revelations is the "Showings of the Five Wounds." In this vision, Julian saw the crucified Christ, and she was given a deep understanding of the love and suffering that he endured for humanity. This vision had a profound impact on Julian, and it led her to a deeper understanding of the nature of God's love.
